What are Inflamed Veins?

Inflamed veins are blood vessels that return deoxygenated blood from the outer parts of the body back to the heart and lungs. When veins become abnormally thick, full of twists and turns or enlarged, they are called Varicose Veins. This happens most commonly in the legs and thighs.

Dilated (enlarged) veins in the walls of the anus, and sometimes around the rectum, are called Hemorrhoids, which are usually caused by untreated constipation and occasionally associated with diarrhea or pregnancy. Symptoms start with bleeding after defecation. If untreated, Hemorrhoids can worsen and protrude from the anus.
